STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The Lewiston Nealey Rifles, Co. D, 2d Regt., M. V. M., will give one of the finest public balls ever given in Lewiston, on Thanksgiving eve, at City Hall, at which they will give an exhibition drill by the same squad that competed at Washington, D. C., last summer. The boys are drilling every day and are doing marvels. They deserve a big house and will get it.

John Spillane, one of the teamsters of Worumbo Mills, Lisbon Falls, went into the boiler house of the mills on the afternoon of Friday, Nov. 11th, to dry his clothing, when the safety valve of the boilers blew out and scalded him almost all over, one of his hands being almost in ribbons. He also inhaled the steam, which burned his throat and nostrils so that the burns swelled and choked him to death about 15.30, Saturday morning. Everything was done for him that could be done, but it was of no avail.

Aroostook.

A writer in the New England Farmer, says the noticeable thing about Aroostook is the rapidity with which the refinements of civilization have followed the woodman's axe. He says he could find a town in Massachusetts having more uncouth ways than he saw in an Aroostook town twenty-four miles from a railroad.

Cumberland.

A run was made on a Portland bank, Thursday. But it was a faro bank, and the run was made at night, by the police. Eight men were surprised in the room and cards and other gaming property to the value of some $250 were secured.

Rev. M. C. McDonough, chancellor of the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception, of Portland, has been appointed pastor at Whitefield. Father McDonough was born in Portland, and since his ordination has labored amongst the Catholic of that city, who very much regret his leaving them.

The exports last week, at Portland, were 2,457,323 feet of lumber, 22,275 pickets and six barrels of spring water, all valued at $132,098.

That there is an increasing interest in art, in Portland, could not be doubted by any one who visited the Portland Society of Art Building, Saturday evening. It was the occasion of the opening of the fall exhibition with the usual private view to members and their invited guests, and the galleries and adjoining rooms were filled all through the evening with an ever changing company who seemed to highly appreciate the exhibition, which, by the way, is one of the most interesting ever held by the society.

For some time past, the Portland police officers have been on the lookout for Timothy Murphy, to arrest for the part he took in the alleged illegal transportation of liquors. Saturday night, Murphy was seen and recognized by Officer Frith, who gave chase, but finding he was likely to lose his man, called to Officer C. K. Newcomb to head him off, which he did. Newcomb made a grab for Murphy, which the latter seeing, stopped, and threw the latter over him. Newcomb fell heavily on the pavement, breaking one bone of his left wrist and dislocating another. A soon as the officer fell, Murphy made his escape.

Sunday morning, Officer Dana Miles, stationed at the West End, Portland, attempted to arrest a man named Feeney for disturbance. Feeney's brother, a man named Conley, and a third man were concerned in the affair, and they assaulted Miles, got him down and jumped on him. Miles held on to his man, and succeeded in discharging his revolver, when a neighbor named McCarty and several other people came to his aid, and both Feeneys and Conley were pulled in to the station. Miles was badly pounded. He is a new officer, but showed that he is a worthy son of his father, the former policeman of the same name.

Franklin.

William Libby, of Lewiston, has built this summer, the Franklin County jail and the Farmington Congregational church. Mr. J. A. Greenleaf, of Auburn, has done the carpenter work on both of these buildings. There were about 125,000 brick in the jail, and about 350,000 in the church. The church, after plans by Coombs, of Lewiston, is one of the prettiest little structures in Maine, an ornament to that thriving county town. There are over $1,500 worth of free stone in the finish of it.

Hancock.

The clothes of a little child of Mr. Staples, of South Surry, took fire recently, and Mr. John Allen's hands were so badly burned in extinguishing the flames that they are useless for the present. The child escaped with little injury.

Kennebec.

Everett Laney, aged fifteen, employed at the Edwards Mills, Augusta, fell from an elevator, Saturday, fracturing one of the bones of his left arm near the wrist.

Henry Mayo, of Augusta, got into an altercation Sunday night, with some companions, who attempted to settle matters by putting him out of doors. The result was that Henry's shoulder was dislocated. A physician was sent for and the bones replaced.

The mortuary records of Augusta show that the locality is conducive to long life. John Gilley, a native of Ireland, but long a resident of Augusta, is said to have reached the extraordinary age of 124 years. Mrs. Sarah Powers died during the past year, aged 106 years, and a colored man named Eason died a few years ago, aged nearly 115 years.

Lieut. Horace Lynch, an English gentleman, has astonished the people of Gardiner by driving out in a real English dog cart that cost $650. Lieut. Lynch, whose wife was a former Pittston lady, a sister to John Steward, of Randolph, the yacht owner, familiarly known as Commodore, has purchased a house in Randolph, and with his wife and daughter and wife's mother, will occupy it this winter.

A prominent scientist has said that the black bass will kill from the mere love of killing, and that thousands of pickerel are destroyed every year by them. This statement is well demonstrated by the history of the black bass in the fountain at the State House in Augusta. They speedily devoured all the other fish in the tank, and then pitched into one another. At last only one was left, and he died from wounds received in his encounters with his vanquished brothers.

Eugene Goode, whose home was in Hallowell, where he had a wife and family, committed suicide at Newton Centre, Mass., Saturday afternoon. He had been stopping for a while at his wife's sister's, and it was not noticed but what he was in his usual state of health and cheerfulness. That afternoon he went to Crystal Lake, or what is better known as Baptist Pond, a short distance from his stopping place. There he hired a boat for a row on the lake. After he had got out well into the deep water, he was seen to rise, stand in the boat, and then throw himself overboard. His body was very quickly recovered. It was found that Mr. Goode had tied a rope around his neck before jumping, and had made his death more certain and sudden by drawing the rope taut about the windpipe, so that death was caused by strangling and drowning.

Sagadahoc.

That part of Woolwich near the ferry landing is booming. Within a year several buildings have been built there and now that enterprising place has three grocery stores, two blacksmith shops and a livery stable.

At the New England Iron Works, Bath, nearly all the large force employed is at work on the engine and boilers for the Slater yacht. The two boilers for the tug B. W. Morse have been completed. A visit to the works found every one busy. Contracts on hand will keep the force at work all winter and well into the spring.

Last week Albert Higgins, who lives on a farm on the Bath and Brunswick road, had a windmill erected to force water from a well on the east of his house to his barn some distance away. During the gale of last Thursday night the framework, some fifty feet high, together with the large wheel at the top, were blown over and badly broken up.

The noon train from Bangor, Saturday, was side-tracked by a misplaced switch at Water street, Bath, and struck the long freight train just made up and nearly ready to go out. The speed of the incoming train was slow, as it had nearly reached the station, and the prompt reversing of the engine succeeded in bringing the train to a stop with but a slight crash against the freight. The only apparent damage was a broken truck frame under the freight car that was struck by the locomotive.

Tug Clara Clarita, of the Morse line of towboats, had a narrow escape from being wrecked at the mouth of the river Friday night. About 5.30 o'clock the tug took a hawser from a light schooner at anchor a short distance from the west end of Stage Island. A heavy sea was running. In starting the tow the hawser parted and became entangled about the propeller to such an extent as to stop the screw from working. Disabled the tug drifted ashore on the west end of Stage Island. Word was sent to the tug Resolute, then at Cox's Head, for assistance. That tug steamed to the disabled boat, which was pounding heavily on the rocks. Not having a large hawser on board, the tug Resolute could not put on a full head of steam as the line in use would part. A small boat was dispatched to Fort Popham and word was sent by telephone to this city, says the Bath Times, for a large hawser. One was placed on board of the tug Adelia and that boat steamed to the scene of the disaster. By the combined efforts of the two tugs, the Clara Clarita was hauled off about four hours after she struck and towed to the company's wharf at Cox's Head. Although in a dangerous position and pounding hard for four hours, the tug was found to be leaking but little. The disabled boat was towed to this city and placed on the marine railway.

Somerset.

Mr. Cullen W. Sawtelle, who died in Englewood, N. J., Friday, was born in Norridgewock, eighty-three years ago, and was graduated at Bowdoin College, in the class of 1825, with Longfellow, Rev. Dr. George B. Cheever, and several other noted men. He practised law in his native town, and for eight years served as register of probate. During the years 1813 and 1844 he was in the State Senate, and in 1845 and 1849 was elected to Congress from Maine. Afterward, Mr. Sawtelle removed to New York, and at one time was the legal adviser of the house of A. T. Stewart & Co. He leaves three children.

George Parker, the clerk at Hotel Coburn, Skowhegan, recently discovered a burglar in the dining room of that house. He at once gave chase to him and saw him enter the ice house. With good pluck the young man called upon his man to hold up his hands or he would shoot him upon the spot. This the stranger did, and Parker calling for help, held him there until Officer Tufts arrived and took him to the lockup. During the excitement of the discovery in the ice house, the culprit sat down upon a cake of ice. The night was chilly enough without ice, but once seated the chap did not dare to move for fear his movement would be misconstrued by his young captor and the misconstruction lead to fatal results, so he sat there, and when the officer arrived was about frozen to death. In the future he will know better than to fool around ice houses on a cold night.

York.

Biddeford is talking about a shoe factory. At the meeting of the Board of Trade, next Friday evening, the question of forming a stock company to erect a building for a shoe factory, will be considered. Two shoe manufacturers have signified their intention of moving there if a building can be erected for their occupancy.

Mrs. Grant has presented General Grant's old war horse Claiborne to the Soldiers' Home, at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Elk Rapids, an ambitious Michigan summer resort, offers $30,000 cash for the first railroad which will enter the town.

Over $50,000 worth of cedar block pavement, is said to have been put down in Cedar Rapids, Ia., since New Year's.

A correspondent of a country paper wants to know how to tell a bad egg. Try to cut it and you will find out at once.

Paper doors are said to be increasing in popularity. It is claimed they possess several advantages over wooden doors, and are, besides, no more costly.

Certainly, Owen Meredith, the poet, is a man of letters. Look at his full name: The Rt. Hon. Edward Robert Lytton Bulwer Lytton, G. C. B., G. C. S. I., C. I. E.

Cyrus W. Field, Jr., a graduate of Williams College in the class of '79, has purchased twenty acres of land in Williamstown, and will erect thereon a handsome stone residence.

Tramps must be abandoning their luxurious style of living. The sad news comes from Connecticut that several of the fraternity, after killing a farmer's dog, made a meal off of it.

At its approaching convention the National Butter, Egg and Cheese Association will endeavor to provide some measures by which eggs shall be sold everywhere by the pound instead of by the dozen.

Boodler John Keenan, of New York, who is now in Montreal "for his health," has an estate valued at $400,000 in the city which he deserted. It is now being managed by a personal friend and agent named Dougherty.

A despatch from San Roma says that Dr. Mackenzie admits that the growth in the crown prince's throat is a cancer, and deprecates an operation, which he declares will be both useless and dangerous. The crown princess also opposes an operation.

The oldest man in Illinois keeps dying. Uncle Johnny Van Piper is the last one. He lived near Elizabeth, was born in Virginia one hundred and ten years ago, and up to his one hundredth birthday was able to kill more gray squirrels with his rifle than nine-tenths of the Illinois marksmen.

When Miss Sadie Aiken, of Reeves, Ga., eloped the other day, she took with her the family watchdog. After the marriage ceremony had been performed she wrote a note to her parents acquainting them with the fact and imploring their forgiveness, tied it to the dog's collar, and sent him home.

A citizen of Jackson, Mich., bought his only son a handsome target rifle with which to kill sparrows a year ago, and the score to date is as follows: One of the boy's fingers shot off, two suits of clothes ruined, a neighbor's family cat shot, one licking bestowed by a neighbor's boy, one sparrow killed, one cent bounty.

At Macon, Georgia, the other day, a bucket of fresh mortar fell from the top of the new Court House and struck squarely on its bottom on the head of a negro workman. The bottom was split into pieces, and the bucket and mortar completely incased his face, so that he was nearly smothered before he was relieved.

The ex-King of Oude, who lately died at Calcutta, was as particular about neatness and cleanliness as the proverbial Dutch housewife. If, when walking in his gardens, he found a stray bird's feather among the flowers, or a few straws or withered leaves lying about, he would fine the gardener and the watchman of the day three days' pay.

During several years past hundreds of couples have been married in a house on the western borders of Warren county, Pennsylvania, under the impression that they had got into Ohio, and might thus evade the license law. The County Commissioners declare that the house is in Pennsylvania, and that the couples must be married over again if they wish to be legally united in the bonds of matrimony.

"This is all so sudden, Mr. Sampson," she said, with maidenly reserve, "and so unexpected that although I confess I am not entirely indifferent to you, I hardly know what to say in reply to—" "If you are in favor of the proposition," suggested Mr. Sampson, who, like Dick Swiveller, is a perpetual grand master, "you will please signify your assent by saying 'Aye.'" "Aye," came softly. "Contrary?" "No!" thundered the old man, opening the door. "The noes have it by a large majority," said Mr. Sampson, reaching hastily for his hat.

It is told that a certain Mrs. Leo Hunter, of Paris, recently invited M. Saint-Saens to her dinner party, and then, having received his acceptance, announced in the invitations to her other guests that M. Saint-Saens would play. He heard of it, but nevertheless went. As soon as he arrived Mrs. Leo Hunter asked him to play. "Oh, madame, I cannot before dinner," he said, "I am too hungry." Accordingly after dinner she renewed the request. "Ah, but Madame," said he, "it is impossible. I have eaten too much at your hospitable board."

A diminutive drummer in a local brass band is in the habit, when out parading with his comrades, of walking by faith and not by sight, owing to his drum being so high that he is unable to see over it. The band, on Saturday afternoons, parade always in one direction, but the other day the leader thought he would change the route a little, and turned down a by-street. The drummer, unaware of this movement, kept on his accustomed way, drumming as hard as ever he could. By and by, after finishing his part, and not hearing the others, he stopped, and, pushing his drum to one side, he looked to see what was the matter. His astonishment may be imagined at finding that he was alone. "Hae!" he cried to some of the bystanders, "has any o' ye seen a band hereaboot?"—Scotch paper.

Chester Letter.

[Correspondence of Whig and Courier.]

Thinking that it may be of some interest to many of the readers of the COURIER, I will write a little about the railroad that the Canadians are building across a part of our State. The piers for the bridge across the Penobscot river, at Mattawamkeag, have been finished, the last stone being laid Saturday, November 13th. J. A. Gorden & Son have got a crew of men quarrying stone for piers for another bridge, to be built in the town of Chester, across the stream called Madunkeunk, and also another crew of men cutting the stone for laying the piers. Masons will soon be here to lay them. It is now said that the bridges will all be wooden bridges, which will make a great deal of work for our Maine carpenters. It is reported that J. A. Gorden & Son have the contract to build all that is to be built on their ten miles of road. I would recommend them to be fine men to work for, and I would say that whoever the men may be that help build the bridge at Mattawamkeag, they will find some of the very best boarding houses that can be found in this State or any other, both private and public. I know whereof I speak. I have been working for the company over four months, and boarded in a private family at Mattawamkeag. I am still at work for them in this town.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.

In all the diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

THE RAYMOND & WHITCOMB EXCURSIONS.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb, the enterprising excursion managers, advertise an attractive list of tours to California and Mexico. The next parties for the Pacific Coast will leave the East December 5 and 8, others following in January, February and March. The Mexican tours are to be two in number. One party will leave Boston January 16 and the other March 12. Both will include a picturesque section of the Southern States, and the first trip will be extended to California. Vestibuled trains, dining cars, hotel cars, and other features have been introduced that serve to make the excursions more enjoyable than ever. One band of tourists is already upon its way across the continent.

Mr. Carroll Hutchins, who is connected with the Raymond & Whitcomb excursion bureau, will be at the Bangor House, during Friday and Saturday, and will be happy to see all persons who are interested in the excursions, or who desire to learn further particulars regarding the various trips.

is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

Do you suffer with catarrh? You can be cured if you take Hood's Sarsaparilla the great blood purifier. Sold by all druggists. 1

It seems strange that it is necessary to persuade men that you can cure their diseases by offering a premium to the man who fails to receive benefit. And yet Dr. Sage undoubtedly cured thousands of cases of obstinate catarrh with his "Catarrh Remedy," who would never have applied to him, if it had not been for his offer of the above sum for an incurable case. "SHE'S MUCH OLDER THAN HER HUSBAND."

We heard a young girl make the above remark the other day about a lady with whom we are slightly acquainted. It was not true, yet the lady in question actually does look five years older than her husband, although she is really several years his junior. She is prematurely aged, and functional derangement is the cause. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription would cure her, and should be recommended to her, and to all others who are in the same condition. If the reader of this chances to be a similar sufferer, let her get the "Prescription." It will bring back her lost beauty, and, better still, it will remove all those distressing symptoms which have made life a burden to her so long. Money refunded if it don't give satisfaction. See guarantee printed on bottle wrapper.

Beware of Scrofula
Scrofula is probably more general than any other disease. It is insidious in character, and manifests itself in running sores, pustular eruptions, boils, swellings, enlarged joints, abscesses, sore eyes, etc. Hood's Sarsaparilla expels all trace of scrofula from the blood, leaving it pure, enriched, and healthy.
"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and over a year had two running sores on my neck. Took five bottles Hood's Sarsaparilla, and am cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.
C. A. Arnold, Arnold, Me., had scrofulous sores for seven years, spring and fall. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured him.
Salt Rheum
Is one of the most disagreeable diseases caused by impure blood. It is readily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier.
William Spies, Elyria, O., suffered greatly from erysipelas and salt rheum, caused by handling tobacco. At times his hands would crack open and bleed. He tried various preparations without aid; finally took Hood's Sarsaparilla, and now says "I am entirely well."
"My son had salt rheum on his hands and on the calves of his legs. He took Hood's Sarsaparilla and is entirely cured." J. B. STANTON, Mt. Vernon, Ohio.

The Key-Stone Solid

The Republican victory in the Key Stone State has grown into noble proportions, the majority at last accounts reaching the enormous total of over 45,000, the largest ever given in the State in an "off year" The Prohibition vote was reduced from 32,000 at last election to less than 12,000 this year, and a large portion of the latter was from the Democratic ranks

The combination made between the Democratic party, the Personal Liberty Leagues, and the rich Brewers' Associations throughout the State assumed a most threatening aspect at one time, and the coalition was beaten only by the promptness and boldness with which Chairman Cooper, of the Republican State Committee accepted the challenge, and appealed squarely to the sincere temperance and order loving sentiment of the people

The contrast between the policy pursued and the results attained in the recent campaign in Pennsylvania and in New York, where the Prohibition vote largely increased will furnish an instructive subject for study But it is most gratifying to find the grand reserve corps of the Republican party standing in such massive columns in Old Pennsylvania

A Sample Bourbon

When ex Senator Thurman, during the Ohio campaign in his desperation over the effect of the rebel speech of ex Minister to Mexico Henry R Jackson, denounced the latter as an "old fool" who had been dismissed from office he stirred up a lively wasp's nest south of Mason and Dixon's Line Jackson is simply a sample Bourbon and blurts out what the Southern Democratic leaders all feel He has written a reply to Mr Thurman, in which he denies that he was intoxicated while occupying the mission at the City of Mexico, denies that President Cleveland recalled him, and again explains his Macon speech He indulges in considerable of the lurid rhetoric so popular in his section, and vehemently insists that the Lost Cause was "pure and patriotic His letter concludes as follows

Simply because of my having made a speech of such a character, upon such an occasion to an audience of veteran soldiers called together for no political purpose whatever you and the swarm of insects which have been buzzing about my name delighted perhaps, in the thought that they were inflicting upon me the venom of their sting have held me up to the world as the mainly vindictive enemy of the Democratic party prepared to harm it to the full extent of my malignant power Is it possible that we of the South are thus to be welcomed back into the Union even by the Democratic party of the North? Are we to stand in perpetual terror of [illegible] anywhere or upon [illegible] to say one word in commendation of that past or to honor of our dead [illegible] of what we know [illegible] the truth of history, lest we may [illegible] injure the Democratic party? Is it not sufficient that we have been stripped of our property and of many things far dearer to us than property ever can be? Must we also consent to sink into the abysses of silence our good name? Must we keep our peace unless we be prepared to kiss the hand that smites and to place ourselves in the rank of truckling hypocrites? Must our children grow up around us hearing at the home hearth the story of the past and realizing that their fathers dare not repeat it in the face of the world? [illegible] this be the school in which to train them for the manful discharge of the grand duties imposed by American civilization upon the American citizen? From the time they begin to perceive and to think for themselves thus to be pushed to the dust by the cruel consciousness that, however pure and patriotic in fact their sires may have been in the opinion of the world they were guilty of an enormous historic crime—the shadow of which must rest forever like a black cloud of ignominy upon the pride the hope and the manhood of their posterity Rather than this I would indeed secede—not simply from the Union of my fathers but from my own native State so dear to my heart, and seek, if need be a home in the depths of barbarism Nay, rather than this I would long for that barbaric conscience which would enable me with one movement of a devoted arm to sweep every drop of my blood in the descending generations from the face of the earth"

The November Elections

At the meeting of the Essex Club in Boston last Saturday, the President, Hon Geo B Loring, after congratulating the Club on the brilliant Republican victory in Massachusetts discussed the other November elections as follows

At this time the votes of those States which have accompanied Massachusetts in the elections of this year are interesting and important At no period has more significance been attached to the elections of off years It has been enthusiastically declared that the election in New York alone has settled the next Presidential campaign, that the Republican party will not gain its power for a quarter of a century that Mr Blaine is finally disposed of that the fate of Fred Grant is a warning to Robert Lincoln, and that the course of the present National administration has received a great popular indorsement Perhaps the Republicans of Massachusetts are not obliged to believe this I have already reminded you that four years ago, on the eve of the last Presidential election the Republican party was defeated by 200,000 majority in New York, by 10 000 in Ohio by 40 000 in Pennsylvania, in Connecticut by 2300 in New Jersey by 10 000 and that the Republican majorities in Illinois and Michigan were largely reduced

This was the state of affairs when the party entered upon the Presidential campaign of 1884—a campaign in which the people virtually indorsed the policy of the Republican party In this campaign which has just closed we have brought one Congressional district in Rhode Island back into the Republican fold, we have retained Nebraska Iowa Pennsylvania and Ohio by large majorities, and have retained our power in the Legislature in New York, and secured a Republican Legislature in New Jersey It is the victory in New York which insures the hope and confidence of the Democratic party, and is entitled on that account to special consideration—a victory secured by Republican indifference and not by Democratic strength The popular voice of New York is against the Democratic party, and in that State, as in Massachusetts, Republican zeal and determination can secure a Republican victory

In the campaign of 1884 the people were confronted by the shadow and possibility of a Democratic administration, now they are confronted by the reality and existence of a Democratic administration, with its national policy, its record of power, its associations, its affiliations with all that has opposed the social and civil triumphs of the Republican party in its remarkable career. Of one thing we may be sure, and that is the harmonious determination of the Republican party of New York to rise to the occasion of a great national campaign, superior to local issues and factions. Let us wait for this before we make up our calculations on New York, and let us meanwhile turn our attention to Connecticut and New Jersey and Indiana.

With regard to the effect of the recent elections on the candidacy of Mr. Blaine, they cannot be taken into consideration. There are no more relations between them than there were between Tenderton steeple and the Goodwin sands. Mr. Blaine's friends are the friends of the Republican party, as he himself is They have entire confidence in his leadership, and they realize that the factions which rise up against them in local elections are to be met on a national field, whoever may be the candidate. A Republican victory is a victory for all he has advocated during a long and active career, in which he has impressed himself so deeply on his party and the country that an accidental defeat has failed to remove him from the class of our great political leaders With him the Republicans of New York came within a few hundred of victory, without him they have failed by a few thousand The recent elections are full of encouragement to the Republican party, and a long step toward a successful campaign in 1888.

The Man They Fear.

The Boston Traveller says "The frantic manner in which the Democratic success in New York is heralded as the 'End of Blaine' is overdone The confidence that there is no more to be heard of Blaine as a candidate seems worked up, and it also shows how much Mr Blaine is feared as a leader This exaltation carries with it a suspicious look as regards the certainty that it is all up with Blaine in 1888 Friends of Cleveland have all along been saying that Blaine was the easiest man to beat If they did not lie they would not now be rejoicing because a harder task was before them in a new Republican candidate"

Mr. Phelps' Triumph in New Jersey.

In the preliminary contest for the control of the New Jersey Legislature of 1889, which will elect a United States Senator, the most remarkable feature is the substantial defeat of Senator McPherson The loss of Somerset and Union is a crushing blow to him On the other hand the loss of Monmouth is fatal to the Blodgett-Little combination Ex Governor Abbott also suffered by the loss of Assemblymen in Hudson It is notable, on the other hand, that the counties in which Mr Phelps made speeches and labored for Republican success there was triumph He was active in Gloucester, and the Republican majority was sustained, he was active in Somerset, Monmouth and Union and Democratic majorities were overcome, and in Essex his efforts were powerful in their influence upon Republican success

The Result of the Elections.

OPINIONS AS TO THE EFFECT UPON NEXT YEAR

The New York World publishes a large number of replies to its question "What, in your opinion, will be the effect of the recent elections particularly that in this State, upon the nomination of President Cleveland and Mr Blaine for the Presidency in 1888?" Among the replies were the following

Boss' Hugh McLaughlin of Brooklyn, says

"Have not had occasion to look into the question I believe that it is entirely too early to form opinion as to the prospects of Mr Cleveland as a candidate for the office of President"

Patrick Ford editor of the Irish World said "Democratic politicians whom I look upon as acute observers have said to me that Cleveland will not be renominated but my own impression is the other way As for the Republicans I believe Blaine is the only man who can carry the Republican party to victory My own opinion is that he is not over anxious for the nomination, but if it is tendered to him and made to appear that it is the unanimous wish of the party he will accept If it is withheld it will not break his heart There are other good men in the Republican party, but he is the most available and will make the best fight When the entire vote of this State is polled, as it was last Presidential election, it is very close a little over 500 carrying either way Blaine notwithstanding the combined Mugwump opposition came nearer carrying the State than any one since, even with the Mugwump support

Gen Michael Kerwin, editor of the Tablet and a Republican, said "I think Blaine is the strongest Republican in the United States, and that he will be the nominee of the Republican party"

Charles N Taintor, Commissioner of Emigration and one of the Republican leaders, said "Tuesday's election in the State was to my mind a drawn battle It settled nothing in particular, except that it improved President Cleveland's chances of being renominated and made him stronger New York is regarded as a Democratic State and there was an increase of only a few thousand in favor of the Democrats Mr Blaine was in no way affected I don't see how it could be regarded that the question of his nomination was at issue The local fight was won by rum and boodle, and if it had not been for that Mr Nicoll would have been elected"

Bernard Biglin said "Oh it's simply a drawn battle I don't see why the Democracy should be so jubilant and go to prophesying a walkover next year That's all nonsense I haven't seen any evidences of a tidal wave Cook only got two or three thousand votes more than Davenport polled, and that was to be expected considering the Federal patronage and all that As to its effect upon the candidacy of Mr Cleveland or Mr Blaine next year I have never had any doubt that Cleveland would be the nominee of the Democracy and I haven't any doubt now But I see no greater probability of it at the present time than has existed Mr Blaine, I feel certain, will be the nominee of the Republican party, and I also feel certain that he will carry this State"

Congressman John G Sawyer said "I think that the sentiment here is that the chances of Mr Blaine are strengthened by the result of the election in this State"

Congressman A X Parker writes from Potsdam "In response to your telegram I answer that the result of the election causes no discouragement Dissatisfaction has mainly spent its force and good nature will follow Had the Republicans kept to a straight ticket in New York City and made such a canvass throughout the State as St Lawrence made they would have been victorious The public judgment and the popular feeling never demanded Blaine's candidacy more unflinchingly than they do to day The Republicans should close up their ranks, welcome all who agree substantially with them in principle give no heed to deserters consult the masses in selecting leaders, nominate Miller for Governor choose a Vice President from beyond Ohio, and place the standard in the hands of Blaine, and they will win in 1888"

E W. Fox manager of the Washington National Republican writes "As to the effect of the election upon President Cleveland, in my judgment, it insures him an unanimous nomination by the Democratic National Convention. As for Mr Blaine, the election demonstrates that he is a stronger man in the State of New York than any Republican the party has put in nomination since the last Presidential election, and the result, in my judgment, will have no influence upon the Republican nomination in 1888, unless it be to make prominent the name of Governor Foraker, in Ohio.

Stilson Hutchins, proprietor of the Washington Daily Post writes:

I do not consider the Democratic victory in the State of New York last Tuesday sufficiently decisive to insure its electoral vote next November. It was a gratifying result in every respect, but it does not foreclose argument or anxiety. With the Prohibition and Labor votes resolved into their original elements it is possible the Democratic candidates might not secure within 20,000 of a half of them.

Neither do I agree with the World's rather summary conclusion that the election of Mr. Cook by 16,000 plurality means the retirement of Blaine and the inevitable renomination of Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Cleveland is, in my opinion, by large odds the strongest Democratic vote-getter, and whether it is accounted a paradox or not, I think Mr. Blaine is, in New York State at least, the strongest Republican. It would be impossible to name any other man who could make so strong a pull upon the otherwise distinctively Democratic vote.

Why Should Unmarried Men Insure their Lives?

When you marry and make your wife and family dependent on you, they will need insurance on your life and more probably, than you will then be able to provide at once

If you take the insurance now it will be ready when needed You will be the better prepared to discharge new responsibilities

The sooner you take a policy the less your annual premium will be through life and the larger will be your proportion of dividends and the smaller will be the relative cost of your insurance after you are married

Annual Dinner of the New York Chamber of Commerce.

Letters From the President and Senator Sherman.

Speech by Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, M. P.

NEW YORK, Nov. 15. The annual dinner of the Chamber of Commerce took place this evening at Delmonico's. Covers were laid for 212. President Charles S. Smith presided. At his right sat Secretary Fairchild and at his left Secretary Lamar. To the right of Mr. Fairchild were Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, Chauncey Depew, Sir George Campbell, Samuel D. Babcock, John Bigelow, Judge Enoch L. Faucher, Rev. L. T. Chamberlain and Collector Magone. To the left of Mr. Lamar were Mayor Hewitt, James L. Carter, Hulley Stewart, M. P., Carl Schurz, Major General Schofield, Congressman Cox, James M. Brown, and many other prominent men were present. President Smith, in his introductory remarks, declared that the Chamber of Commerce intended to the improvement of the harbor defences for the city, a stronger navy and subsidies for American steamship lines. Letters were read from President Cleveland, Senator Sherman and Gov. Hill. The President wrote: "Those charged by the people with the management of the Government cannot fail to enhance their usefulness by a familiarity with the business men, since a good government has no more important mission than the stimulation and protection of the activities of the country. This relation between the Government and business suggests the thought that the members of such associations as yours owe to themselves and all the people a thoughtful discharge of their political obligations,

Continue its Efforts to Secure

Guided by a Practical Knowledge of affairs, to the end that there may be impressed on the administration of government a business character and tendency, free from the diversion of passion, and unmoved by sudden gusts of excitement. But the most wholesome purposes of their political action will not be accomplished by an insistance on their exclusive claim to selfish benefits, regardless of the welfare of the people at large. Interdependence is so fully an element in the national existence that a patriotic, generous heed to the general good should seem to subserve every particular interest."

Senator Sherman's Letter.

Senator Sherman said: Perhaps the most important subject for the immediate future is the extension of our commerce, especially into Mexico and South America. The enormous development of our internal industry made it necessary to seek foreign markets for our surplus productions. The most hopeful fields of such operations is the growing demands of the American continent for many articles of the United States, better than any other country can furnish.

After reading the letters the toast "The President" was drunk. Secretary Lamar said: The President told him to remind the gentlemen of the club that the two great questions are a national representative of the great country here, and a national commerce which shall represent the United States. Mr. Lamar said that in a short time the United States would not only be in the race with Great Britain for commercial supremacy, but would soon outstrip her.

In response to the toast "The United States," Hon. Chauncey M. Depew responded in a humorous vein.

On proposing the health of Mr. Chamberlain the President said: We are very glad to welcome us our guest to-night, a gentleman still in the prime of life, to whom fame came early whose name is known wherever the English tongue is spoken and who, like is always conspicious in his friendship for this country. He comes to us representing the government of Great Britian upon a most important diplomatic mission in the hope of settling a question which causes bad blood between our Canadian neighbors and an important section of our country. It seems to me, gentlemen, that our guests are fully equipped by long business, as well as public experience, to accomplish the desired result. I hold it to be a good omen for a satisfactory settlement of the fishery question that Mr. Chamberlain, as a cabinet minister and member of Parliament, in private life, officially and unofficially, has shown himself on all occasions a strong

Friend and Protector of the Sailor.

We may be sure as far as justice will permit that his sympathies will be extended to the seamen, who have the largest interest in the settlement. I ask you, gentlemen, to fill your glasses and drink to the health of Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and to success to his mission. Mr. Chamberlain thanked the Chairman and Chamber for the kindly words. He appreciated his cordial reception and was honored in accepting the Chamber's hospitality. He would take the opportunity to say that he was very much touched by the welcome received since he reached these shores. It had deepened the good feeling he had always felt for this country. He was well aware that the kindness with which he had been received

Was Not Due to any Personal Merit.

He felt it was due more to his position as the representative of the country on the other side and the object which brought him over. There was a feeling of kinship existing between the two nations which, during the last twenty years, have been brought closer together and old prejudices made to disappear. Personal intercourse had brought mutual respect and consideration on which alone true friendship is built. He thought we would be able to settle our differences but did not expect a settlement of this dispute would give any special advantage to either party. It was not to the interest of any great nation to make a settlement that was not for the best interest of both. They had only to lay aside all matters not in dispute and had no doubt that in consideration.

This Country Would Weigh Heavily

in any controversy between Great Britain and the United States. In spite of all things politicians tried to interpose the two nations were the greatest customers, one with the other. Half the total exports of the United States find a market in the United Kingdom. The two countries could not afford the luxury of a quarrel. (Loud applause.) Their sentiments and interests alike combine to cement the ties which kinship of a common origin entitles us to. "If you will permit me I will say one word about my impressions of the country. I have seen very little, but have heard a great deal. (Laughter.) I think it may be summed up in the sentence that I am simply amazed at the energy, enterprise and ceaseless activity with which you pursue your avocations. You have carried to the science of the production of wealth. But that is only one step in your nation's progress and you are likely to be confronted, sooner or later, and if I do not mistake the signs of the times it will be sooner rather than later, with other problems important to humanity, when you have to find employment for the wealth now being created."

Mayor Hewitt responded to the toast, "The City of New York." Mr. George William Curtis to "The English speaking race," Hon. W. R. Cremer, M. P., to "The peace delegation" and James C. Carter to "The bench and the bar."

DASTARDLY DYNAMITERS.

A Canadian Inspector's House Blown Up.

ORANGEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 15. Home Inspector Anderson was again blown up by dynamite, to-night. The charge was placed on the veranda. The front rooms and the veranda are a complete wreck. Mrs. Anderson was alone, sitting beside the stove in the dining room and was badly shocked. The Inspector had just left and was only ten yards away and was stunned. A note was tacked to the fence warning him to desist his effort to enforce prohibition, stating that he might congratulate himself that he had not been blown to kingdom come. Several hotel keepers were fined for violating the law last week. There is intense excitement. This is the sixth explosion in Orangeville in two years.

COMMISSIONER SPARKS RESIGNS.

Culmination of the Land Office Troubles.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. Land Commissioner Sparks tendered his resignation to the President this afternoon, accompanying it with a letter defending his course in the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Land Grant case. In conclusion he says: "It is but just to say that the published communication addressed me and laid before you is no answer to my letter applying for a review. The issue raised by me was strictly one of law. The presentation of the issue was strictly in the line of legal arguments. In the letter addressed to me that issue was not met. Its effect has been to create the erroneous impression that the issue was one of authority alone and that I refused to execute the Secretary's official orders. This diversion of the issue, from one of a legal construction to one of authority and insubordination, is the

and a diversion of the public from the merits of the case, and, if not resisted by me in this presentation to you, would be a suppression by that power of a proper and considerate effort on my part, as Commissioner of the General Land Office, to secure in the public interest an impartial hearing before the Secretary of the Interior on a purely legal question, affecting the administration of the office with which I am charged. The office of Commissioner of the General Land Office has been one of intense labor, imposing a constant sense of high responsibility, and having sought it at your hands I have continued to hold it only out of a sense of duty with the view of effecting some good to the public. I have endeavored to discharge my full duty in it, in the face of many discouragements and from those whose interests were to defeat the policy pursued. I had believed the line of action correct and thought I had reason for the belief that it met with your approval. If these decisions foreshadow a change in the official policy on this subject, knowing well what this means in practical application, I could not, of course, with my sense of duty be an instrument to effect a change. Having ever, as now, regarded the commission I hold from you as subject to your recall, and desiring to relieve you of any possible embarrassment, I herewith tender you my resignation as Commissioner of the General Land Office, and ask its early acceptance.

NATIONAL BAPTIST CONGRESS

Sixth Annual Meeting at Indianapolis.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 15. The sixth annual meeting of the Baptist National Congress began this afternoon to discuss current question. The foremost men of the denomination will participate. The first topic considered was "The organic union of Christendom." Papers by Dr. G. D. Boardman, of Philadelphia, and Dr. R. S. McArthur, of New York, were read, while addresses were made by Dr. G. C. Lorimer, of Chicago, and Justus Bulkley, of Alton, Ills.. In the evening "The Land Question" was presented. The first speaker was Hon. Allen Zollars, Chief Justice of the Indiana Supreme Court, followed by ex-Senator James R. Doolittle, of Chicago, who said that no revolutionary methods would be proposed, but the future growth of land monopoly should be prevented by law. In the territories Congress had power to do this; in the States amendments to the constitutions were necessary.

Such Amendments Should Provide

that once in every twenty years or for every new generation, the Legislature should first limit the amount of agricultural and to the amount of land in villages and cities which any one person could thereafter take or acquire in any manner, this amount to be determined by each State for itself. The speaker also favored an amendment which, besides exempting homesteads from forced sale for debt should within certain limits exempt homesteads and necessary furniture from taxation. State constitutions should grant every householder, or head of a family, who lives with and supports his family in a separate homestead, for such time as the Legislature shall provide, in addition to the vote to which he is now entitled,

An Additional Vote to Represent

his family. "Nothing," said the speaker, "can be more certain than that a man who takes upon himself the responsibility of rearing a family has a double responsibility as compared with a single, unmarried man, and as such should have a double vote."

"Profit sharing" was discussed by Prof. Moncrief, of Wauklin College, and John D. Smith, of Minneapolis.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING.

In all the diseases of the nasal mucous membrane the remedy used must be non-irritating. The medical profession has been slow to learn this. Nothing satisfactory can be accomplished with douches, snuffs, powders, syringes, astringents, or any similar application, because they are all irritating, do not thoroughly reach the affected surfaces and should be abandoned as worse than failures. A multitude of persons who have for years borne all the worry and pain that catarrh can inflict, testify to radical and permanent cures wrought by Ely's Cream Balm.

One band of tourists is already upon its way across the continent.

ONE FACT

is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum and other diseases or affections arising from impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it. c

$500 NOT CALLED FOR.

It seems strange that it is necessary to persuade men that you can cure their diseases by offering a premium to the man who fails to receive benefit. And yet Dr. Sage undoubtedly cured thousands of cases of obstinate catarrh with his "Catarrh Remedy," who would never have applied to him, if it had not been for his offer of the above sum for an incurable case. Who is the next bidder for cure or cash? nov15 d&w1w

"SHE'S MUCH OLDER THAN HER HUSBAND."

We heard a young girl make the above remark the other day about a lady with whom we are slightly acquainted. It was not true, yet the lady in question actually does look five years older than her husband, although she is really several years his junior. She is prematurely aged, and functional derangement is the cause. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription would cure her, and should be recommended to her, and to all others who are in the same condition. If the reader of this chances to be a similar sufferer, let her get the "Prescription." It will bring back her lost beauty, and, better still, it will remove all those distressing symptoms which have made life a burden to her so long. Money refunded if it don't give satisfaction. The low state of the water which has prevailed up river for a number of days is a cause of much trouble to the lumbermen who are unable to move their logs in the shallow water. Two feet of water are needed very much, but the rain of yesterday may supply enough to enable the lumbermen to get their logs into winter quarters. The rafts that have been sent down recently have been small and not able to take loads of laths owing to the low state of the water.

The management has made the best of preparations for this event and it will undoubtedly be very successful in every respect.

The rain which fell quite smartly all day yesterday was very welcome. It has been much needed as none, of any amount, has fallen for a number of weeks and the ground was very dry in consequence. The wells, the ground, the rivers, streams and brooks all needed rain, before everything freezes up, and yesterday they got it. It rained at Greenville yesterday, and at last accounts the snow which has been on the ground in that region for a few days so that there was good sleighing, was rapidly disappearing.

Mr. George H. Hopkins, formerly of this city, now located at Leavenworth, Kansas, has been chosen recording Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of that place, the same position which he held in the Bangor Y. M. C. A. The Leavenworth Times says that the newly elected officers are representative business men and the work of the association will be vigorously pushed under their direction.

COMPLIMENT TO MAINE CATTLE. F. O. Beal, Esq., President of the State of Maine Cattle Commission, received a letter yesterday from Dr. George H. Bailey, of the Commission, who writes, among other matters: "I have a letter from a breeder at Peabody, Mass., who lost nineteen out of a herd of twenty-five with 'bad cases' of tuberculosis and he is coming to Maine to buy twenty cows to take their place, as he says he understands that we can give him a 'clean bill of health.'" This letter of itself shows that the thorough work of our Cattle Commission is known of abroad and that the State is already reaping the benefit of it, not only in stamping out disease among our own cattle, but in bringing orders from other States for cattle to replace those lost by them.

DAMAGED COAL SHED. People in the vicinity of Kenduskeag bridge were startled by a loud crash yesterday afternoon a few minutes before five o'clock, which appeared to come from the rear of Kenduskeag block. Investigation showed that it had proceeded from the bursting out of the rear wall of E. & I. K. Stetson's large coal shed, just back of Kenduskeag block. Some part of the wall, probably the iron bolts which held the braces, had given way and the whole end of the building fallen out. About 100 tons of coal, of the 400 in the bin, came out from the opening and was deposited on the ground. This will be put back to-day into another bin which is only about half full, and the building repaired as soon as possible.

A FINE VESSEL. A party numbering about thirty persons came from Boston to Camden yesterday to attend the launching of the schooner Pocahontas, which took place yesterday forenoon. It is said that the daughter of Captain J. M. Phillips, who is to command the Pocahontas, was the "real Indian girl" who christened the vessel. The new schooner is a very handsome and commodious one, being four masted, and one of the largest vessels ever built in this State. She is 240 feet over all in length, draws 18 feet of water, is of 46 feet beam, 20 feet hold and 210 feet keel. The vessel is 20 feet longer and 3½ feet wider than the King Philip, which has the same owners as the Pocahontas, and is built to carry coal, having a capacity of 2,300 tons, which is about 400 tons more than that of the King Philip. Her owners may well be proud of one of the finest vessels afloat.

A BOOM IN POTATOES. The St. John Telegraph says: Three or four special trains of potatoes are daily run over the I. C. R., and still there is a cry for cars from all points all along the line. The crop of the Maritime Provinces is estimated at 20,000,000 bushels, which at an average of 50 cents per bushel, are worth $10,000,000. The P. E. I. crop is estimated at about 7,000,000 bushels, of which 3,000,000 to 3,500,000 will be exported, and 300,000 to 400,000 bushels manufactured into starch. Island farmers are only netting 18c to 30c per bushel for their potatoes, as against 50c in Nova Scotia, because of their inability to secure transportation. Taking advantage of the block on the railways, the Boston, Halifax and P. E. Island Steamship Company have put up their freight rates to 15c per bushel for potatoes from Charlottetown to Boston. The cost of the barrel is to be added, and the duty, 15c gives the American producer a protection of about 33c per bushel over their P. E. I. competitors.

A BIG BUCK AND A FINE DOE. Mr. Albert H. Wheeler, while engaged in some work about his house at East Orrington early yesterday afternoon, was informed by members of his family who had been taking a short ride, that there were two deer in the pasture near the house. He did not wait for anything further to be said but went for his rifle as quickly as possible and ran to the pasture. After getting where he could see the deer, he proceeded carefully, but the deer scented him and started off at a lively pace. A quick shot brought down one, and the other stopping a few moments to see what had happened was also brought down. When Mr. Wheeler approached his game, he found a large handsome buck, and fine doe. He brought them to this city and left them at B. P. Kidder's market where the juicy steaks will be cut up. Pretty good luck when a man can stand in his own yard and shoot a couple of deer. Every day proves the good results of the game law, in enabling deer to become plenty, and even come up to a man's house and ask to be shot.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Kindergarden.

The musical comedy "The Kindergarden" seems to be a mixture of good, bad and indifferent. The music is bright, the dancing good and the costumes in the last act especially were fine, but there is considerable in the piece that might be omitted to advantage. The "Widow Magee" of W. H. Leary was coarse and while at times it approached a sense of rational humor was on the whole not calculated to please a refined audience. The company has some excellent material and there is enough in the piece to afford an evening of fun of the more rollicking kind, but until some of the objectionable features are weeded out "The Kindergarden" is not destined to cater to the taste of the regular theatre-going people of Bangor. The attendance last evening was small, but the applause was liberal, there being several encores. The piece will be repeated this evening.

Boston Elysian Troubadours.

The sale of seats for Friday and Saturday evening's entertainments by this troupe of colored artists will open this morning. The Boston Globe said:

"Madam Richardson, with the Boston Elysian Troubadours, well titled the only rival of Blind Tom, imitated with a master band, the music box, chime bells, guitar, fife and drum, and on the organ, the bag pipes. The concert was a decided success."

New Grange Hall.

Queen City Grange, P. of H., have just completed their new hall at Six Mile Falls, in this city, and the members are receiving many compliments from the citizens living in the vicinity and others who have had occasion to visit that part of the city, for the public spirit and good judgment they have displayed in erecting so beautiful and convenient an edifice for the use of the neighborhood for public meetings, as well as for the special work of the Grange. While it is intended that the hall shall be dedicated to the special use of the Grange, its use will not be denied to the public for meetings properly conducted and of such a nature as will meet the approval of the best class of citizens. As there has never been any building for public meetings within a radius of four or five miles, excepting the church at East Bangor, it is not surprising that the organization is meeting with the hearty congratulations of all the citizens of the village.

The patrons changed their headquarters from the city proper to Six Mile Falls about two years since, at the request of a number of their brethren, and established themselves for the time being in the hall at the public house of Mr. O. D. Stockwell, as a temporary resort until they could build; and although most kindly and hospitably treated by their landlord, they felt conscious that it was at a great sacrifice of needed room for his guests. Now they feel that they are taking a new lease of life, as experience proves that a "Home" owned by the Grange, always ensures prosperity to the organization. No special effort has been made to obtain new members, heretofore on account of lack of accommodations.

The audience room is 38x25 in the clear. At the entrance are two ante-rooms, each 10 feet 4 inches by 9 feet 2 inches. In the second story a room is nicely finished, twenty-two feet by fifteen, to be used as a ladies' reception and work room.

A public dedication will take place Thursday, December 1st. Distinguished members of the order are expected to be present and the event is intended to be made an enjoyable occasion for all in attendance.

The members, of both sexes, have put a large amount of personal labor as well as money into the building, and in no case has there been the least dispute in regard to the plan of any part of the structure, and all who examined the building think it would be hard to suggest an improvement.

THE OHIO STATE AUTHORITIES EXAMINE THE BAKING POWDERS.—SEARCHING INVESTIGATION AS TO THEIR MERITS.—CLEVELAND'S THE BEST.

The Commission appointed by the Ohio Legislature to examine food products has made its report on baking powders. The State Chemist, Prof. Webber, analyzed thirty different brands. Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, is in point of merit at the head of the list of all the cream of tartar baking powders and produces the largest amount of carbonic acid gas, the leavening agent. The following from the official report will enable the public to form an intelligent opinion from unprejudiced and wholly disinterested sources, of the comparative merits of two of the powders examined:

CLEVELAND'S

Carbonic Acid Gas, 12.80 per ct.

Bicarbonate of Soda,	26.12 per ct.
Cream of Tarter,	54.70 "
Starch,	9.00 "
Residuum,	10.18 "
	100.00

ROYAL*

Carbonic Acid Gas, 11.80 per ct.

Bicarbonate of Soda,	25.21 per ct.
Cream of Tarter,	50.44 "
Starch,	17.10 "
Residuum,	7.25 "
	100.00

*This powder contained a small percentage of ammonium carbonate, which was calculated as bicarbonate of soda above.

It will be seen from this report that Cleveland's is entirely free from ammonia, and contains considerably more cream of tarter (the expensive ingredient of a pure baking powder) and yields more leavening gas than the Royal.

Business Items.

MR. D. W. STARRETT, of Boston, the well known tailor, will be at the Bangor House from Saturday, until Monday, with a fine lot of samples of goods for custom work.

Agricultural and Household Matters.

George M. Whitaker, of the New England Farmer, who was one of the guests of the Board of Agriculture on its recent trip to Aroostook, says: One of the noticeable things about the parts of Aroostook I visited was the total absence of any semi-civilization. As soon as the land is cleared and settled, as a rule, all the refinements and privileges of modern society follow at once. A person settling in Aroostook has to put up with none of the pioneer inconveniences of Western life. The fact is noticed by the Maine Farmer, although written about the Rangeley region, as follows:—

The farms whose pastures border on the unending woods of the timber country, are feeding the Durhams, the Herefords and Southdowns; and on these farms are employed all the modern appliances which go to facilitate work and make labor light, while the buildings are the best of the kind, and fashioned after the advanced knowledge of the day, and furnished with modern appliances fully abreast of any to be found elsewhere. And, best of all, the occupants are educated, refined, and well read in all the affairs of the world. To-day there is no pioneer life among us, no tapering off from the town to the woods.

The town of Rangeley is dropped down in the heart of the woods, surrounded on all sides with deep forests. Yet here are found many good farmers, and among them some of the wealthiest and most independent of any in the State. Among them is A. T. Toothaker, with a farm of 300 acres with elegant farm buildings, three large barns filled with a hundred tons of hay, and large quantities of grain, and on which are kept forty head of cattle.

I think I could find localities in Massachusetts where there could be seen more uncouth, dowdyish and old-fashioned ways than in Ashland, twenty-four miles from a railroad point, 500 miles from the Hub.

How to get a Grange Hall.

The members of South Presque Isle Grange have just completed a building for grange purposes, 45x60, which is admirably adapted to the uses for which it was intended. In the basement are accommodations for horses, as many of the members have to come a long distance and the humane care of the horse is an important consideration. On the first floor is a commodious and comfortable grange hall with organ, tables, plenty of seats and lights. The second floor is a banquet hall well equipped with all the necessary things for preparing a good entertainment in this line.

A stock company was formed, the capital being equal to the cost of the building, divided into five dollar shares. This stock was all taken by members of the grange, some paying in labor, some in lumber or other material, and some in cash. By this means the hall was built and paid for, and it is owned by members of the order. These shares of stock are also of the nature of notes, and the grange itself as an organization has the right to purchase this stock at par and accrued interest as fast as it is able, so that gradually the ownership will pass from the members individually to the members collectively—that is to the grange as a corporation. The building is a substantial structure, and is used as a place for Sabbath neighborhood meetings. A Sabbath school has been organized with one hundred members that previous to the constructing of this hall had no such privileges.

The oat and potato crops in England and Ireland are turning out much poorer than was expected. This means an increased demand for American wheat. Our own oat and potato crops are below the average, so that however high the price may go in Europe, they are not likely to be largely exported. In this country the scarcity of any favorite article of food, as potatoes, has less effect than in Europe, in diverting consumption to something else. Our people generally eat what they like best, regardless of price, a pretty sure sign that workingmen here are better paid than anywhere else in the world.

The total exports of apples from the United States and Canada for the week ending November 5th, 1887, were 31,349 barrels, as against 79,894 barrels for the corresponding week of last year. The total exports from all American points to all British ports for the week ending Nov. 5th, 1887, were 252,545 barrels, as against 344,444 barrels for the corresponding period of last year, showing a decrease in exports this year of 91,899 barrels. Prices are higher in Liverpool this year than last, though about this time last year there was an advance of Liverpool prices, and each succeeding week showed a steady advance until the end of the season. At this date last year the market was nearly fifty cents per barrel lower than at present. The market in England seems to be steady for good fruit at full values, while poor fruit is almost entirely unsalable. While the exports from Boston seem to be declining this year, they show a marked increase from New York city, probably owing to the fact that there are more apples in the Middle States this year than in the Eastern States.

The municipal gardeners of Paris raise two hundred and thirty-two varieties of apples in the orchard of the Luxenbourg Gardens. The fruit is divided into three parts; the finest specimens are sent to the Prefect of the Seine, the second part is given to the Val-de-Grase Military Hospital, and the third is sold to the great Paris restaurants.

There is no doubt that potatoes have been a very short crop in many sections, and that high prices will prevail is equally certain. However, it must be remembered that extreme high prices always attract supplies from distant points, as well as tend to diminish consumption. We find, says the Cultivator published in Boston, in looking over the market here, that the dealers are disinclined to pay extreme rates, although admitting a scarcity of good potatoes. Some of these parties who have buyers in Aroostook county, for instance, hesitate to pay the asking price there. There are a number of Boston buyers now located in the Provinces, especially in Prince Edward Island, where potatoes are selling at twenty-five to thirty cents per bushel. Potatoes in that section are unusually plenty and of excellent quality. The import duty into this country is fifteen cents per bushel. Large quantities are now being received by vessel. Of course, extreme cold weather will soon shut off this supply. Potatoes are being attracted to this country from German ports, and are arriving in New York City by the thousand sacks, on each incoming steamer. German potatoes are selling at $1.75 per sack. The quantity of potatoes received in New York City, daily, is something astonishing to those not conversant with the business. Thus on Monday week, 26,752 barrels were received from the following points: Nova Scotia, 781 barrels, by vessel; Halifax steamer, 1,758 barrels; Hudson River boats, 1,500 barrels; Old Dominion steamer, 1,[illegible] barrels; canal boats, [illegible] [illegible] coming in over the various railway lines which centre in New York City. While we have no doubt potatoes will command good prices, yet we believe those farmers who are offered high prices at this season of the year, will net more money in the long run by accepting such rates, than by holding their potatoes for an uncertain market in the future.

Mr. Seth Davis, of Newton, Mass., who recently celebrated his one hundredth birthday, has made milk a chief article of food for a large part of his life. Crackers and milk for breakfast, and bread and milk for supper, has been his simple diet. Milk is one of the best and cheapest forms of animal food known, and Mr. Davis' experience is a pretty good proof of it.

Rev. T. D. Talmage says: "We were born to serve, and when we serve others, we serve God. The flush on that woman's cheek, as she bends over the hot stove, is as sacred in God's sight, as the flush on the cheek of one, who, on a hot day, preaches the Gospel. We may serve God with plate, and cutlery, and broom, as certainly as we can serve him with a psalm book and liturgy.

My advice to "literary aspirants" is to stop aspiring and go to work; know what he writes about and write about what he knows. Study nature's moods and tenses as well as those in the grammar. Never let anything go out of your hands until you have done it as well as you can. Always work in a room with an open fire—not for the sake of the fire, but in order that you may burn five sheets for every one you send to the printer. Learn of the proof reader. He may not always be right, but he is very likely to show you how to get right. Bless the critic. He may condemn you unjustly, but he is more likely to praise you unreservedly. Praise has its uses, and scourging is always profitable. When you describe a bird, a tree, or a flower, be sure you know what you are describing; when you paint a man, study him so that others will know his lineaments. If you are writing for a periodical, write what the editor wants; if you are writing a book, try and write what the public wants.—Albion W. Tourgee.

No one who enters many of the homes of the country can fail to notice what a marked progress has been made in beautifying them. Almost every young woman and many of the older ones are now capable of doing a large variety of things that go to make up home decoration, and these are found in the household in profusion. A few cents or dollars will go to a surprising length in the purchase of materials for this work of æstheticism, and these in the deft fingers of wife and daughter become choice attractions in beautifying the home. The decoration of the home is not only an effect of the growing taste and appreciation of the time, but is also a cause of improving these. Whoever lives amid beautiful surroundings partakes of the influence that emanates from them, and his or her life must be moulded considerably by them. They give a tone to life, just as a painting gets a tone from its coloring. The mothers and daughters of the land by means of their home decoration and beautifying, are giving a new coloring to life that makes it more precious than ever before.

Its the BEST, because

1st. IT IS THE ONLY CORSET EVER MADE that will reduce the size and increase the length of the waist of FLESHY LADIES without injurious tight lacing.

2d. IT IS THE BEST SPINAL SUPPORTER ever made, and it supports equally well the abdomen and all other parts of the body.

3d. IT IS PROOF AGAINST PERSPIRATION and moisture. Will neither corrode or soil the underwear, stretch or break at the waist. The bones never move or come out in wear.

4th. IT NEVER CHANGES ITS FORM, always retaining its original shape; it is invaluable to young ladies, because it removes and prevents stooping and round shoulders.

5th. IF THE PROPER MEASUREMENT IS TAKEN, no Corset maker can make one to order (at any price) that will fit as well, or wear with as much ease and comfort, or give such a magnificent form as "Her Majesty's."

SKIN SCALP BLOOD

Having been a sufferer for two years and a half from a disease caused by a bruise on the leg, and having been cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES when all other methods and remedies failed, I deem it my duty to recommend them. I visited Hot Springs to no avail, and tried several doctors without success, and at last our principal druggist, Mr. John P. Finlay, (to whom I shall ever feel grateful), spoke to me about Cuticura and I consented to give them a trial with the result that I am perfectly cured. There is now no sore about me. I think I can show the largest surface where my sufferings sprang from of any one in the State. The Cuticura Remedies are the best blood and skin cures manufactured. I refer to druggist John P. Finlay and Dr. D. C. Montgomery, both of this place, and to Dr. Smith, of Lake Lee, Miss.

ALEXANDER BEACH, Greenville, Miss.

Mr. Beach used the Cuticura Remedies, at our request, with results as above stated.

SAVED MY MOTHER'S LIFE.

Ever since I can remember, my mother has suffered from a milk leg. Nothing would do her any good. She had the best medical talent, but they all did her no good. She suffered with her leg for thirty years and never knew a well day. She would have to sit up half the night, holding up her leg and moaning. She had no peace. She used all the best known remedies in the country without effect. I asked her to try your Cuticura Remedies. Got her a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, and she took it, and has taken in all about six or seven bottles, and now she is a well woman to-day. Her leg is entirely healed, and her health was never better. She can go out every day, something she has not done in ten years, so you see I cannot help stating to you about your wonderful Cuticura Remedies. You have saved my mother's life. I cannot find words to express my gratitude. I have advertised your Cuticura Remedies far and near.

EDWARD LUEDER,

Sneezing Catarrh.

The distressing sneeze, sneeze, sneeze, the acrid, watery discharges from the eyes and nose, the painful inflammation extending to the throat, the swelling of the mucous lining, causing choking sensations, cough, ringing noises in the head and splitting headaches,—how familiar these symptoms are to thousands who suffer periodically from head colds or influenza, and who live in ignorance of the fact that a single application of SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE FOR CATARRH will afford instantaneous relief.

But this treatment in cases of simple Catarrh gives but a faint idea of what this remedy will do in the chronic forms, where the breathing is obstructed by choking, putrid mucous accumulations, the hearing affected, smell and taste gone, throat ulcerated and hacking cough gradually fastening itself upon the debilitated system. Then it is that the marvellous curative power of Sanford's Radical Cure manifests itself in instantaneous and grateful relief. Cure begins from the first application. It is rapid, radical, permanent, economical, safe.

Some Obvious Facts

[New York Tribune]

A larger proportion of Republicans than of Democrats stayed at home That is the meaning of many columns of figures which crowd the papers All the talk about other causes of Democratic success in this State have to be read by the light of the primary fact that a great many thousand more Republicans than Democrats failed to vote at all He who wants detailed proof of this fact can extract oceans of it from the returns This State went Democratic because here many Republicans did not take the trouble to vote That made it possible for some increase of the Prohibition vote to help the saloons That made made it possible for the buying of votes, with the money of liquor sellers and reform office holders to secure an increased Democratic majority

This is a New York fact Just across the river, where the Republicans have made heavy gains electing a Legislature with a safe working Republican majority in both houses, this fact does not appear In Essex County not as far from the City Hall as the upper end of this city New ark Personal Liberty agitators and New ark Prohibitionist did not prevent a sweeping Republican victory and in Bergen County, just across the Hudson river, Republicans elected Surrogate Pell by several hundred majority where as large a Democratic majority is usual and the majority for Cleveland was over 600 Republican indifference does not appear in Rhode Island or Massachusetts where important Republican victories gladden the hearts of those who believe in protection

It does not appear in Pennsylvania where liquor dealers and Prohibitionists in vain played into Democratic hands together, nor in grand old Ohio, where Democratic crimes and corruption utterly failed to indorse the President's order to surrender rebel flags Across the Potomac to the southward Virginia shows some surprising Republican gains Across the Mississippi to the westward Nebraska does grandly and Iowa stands firmly Republican The bottom fact in New York —that Republicans enough stayed at home to make Democratic success a possibility —is a New York fact

This county and Kings gave 143,607 votes for Mr Blaine, against 202 400 for Mr Cleveland and it is unnecessary to say that the Republicans have never since polled so heavy a vote for any candidate in the two cities With more than 50 000 votes cast for Henry George, the Democratic plurality in these cities is still a little larger than it was for Cleveland The Republican workingmen, who believed that they were joining a great host of Democratic associates in supporting Mr George's theories, may learn from the returns that a great many of the Democrats who voted for him last year have quietly drifted back to their party But that would not settle the business, nor the small increase in the Prohibition vote in other parts of the State if the Republican voters beyond the Harlem River had cared enough for the election to go to the polls

Republican leaders will find it worth their while to consider these circumstances, with dispassionate, unbiased and searching scrutiny The cause for Republican defeat is to be found here and not somewhere else The 560 000 Republicans in this State are not more indifferent to the protection of home industry than the voters of Massachusetts on the east or Ohio on the west, why did they take less pains to vote? They are not more enchanted with President Cleveland than the voters of other States why do they suffer him to score a triumph which makes his renomination easy? It is not necessary to answer these questions in haste, there is time enough to think about them But it may be as well to inquire if Republican principles, vital questions of national policy, were as thoroughly discussed in this State as in Ohio It might be as well to inquire whether reliance for success upon all sorts of political diversions has not turned away the thoughts of men from those sound principles upon which alone the Republican party can depend for success

Where the President Stands

[New York Tribune]

Where do the results of the elections leave President Cleveland? How does he stand now as compared with his standing before the campaign began?

In the local contest in this city he interfered in an extraordinary way and in behalf of an extraordinary candidate His personal organs, which were supporting Nicoll, were overwhelmed with mortification and anger It is no defence to say that his letter was written before the Tweed disclosures The issue between the boodle machine and the citizens was well made up when the letter was written. President Cleveland understood it, just as he understood Colonel Fellows' character and antecedents He interfered deliberately because he wanted to conciliate the party machine in this city with a view to his re-election.

In Maryland the Gorman ring carried the state, as they did the city of Baltimore a few weeks ago, by the aid of the Federal patronage. The Independent movement is crushed to the earth, at least for a time, and President Cleveland did it. If he had taken sides with the honest and decent element of his own party, or if he had refused to take sides at all, the gang of repeaters and murderers who have now got a fresh grip on the State would have been defeated. But his favor was not withdrawn [illegible] more powerfully for the Gorman ticket than it was here for Fellows And this Gorman ring, be it remembered, is in many respects a more desperate and unscrupulous organization than the Tweed ring, which is a by-word all over the civilized world The Tweed ring was a corrupt and brutal combination, but we do not believe it ever appointed to office within a few months seven men who had taken human life Mr Cleveland's alliance with these men, whose record recalls that of the 'Blood Tubs and Plug-Uglies" of former days in Baltimore, was made with a view to his re-election

Mr Cleveland has permitted Federal employes to be assessed almost in the very shadow of the White House An agent of the Democratic State Committee of this State went to Washington and announced in the newspapers the time and place at which clerks could find him This was in direct violation of the spirit of the Civil Service law though not of its letter Mr Cleveland could have stopped it with a word but he permitted it to go on in order to help toward his re-election

In Massachusetts a reported indorsement of Lovering, the Democratic candidate for Governor by Mr Cleveland excited the indignation of his Mugwump supporters Mr Lovering was nominated to represent the contempt of Massachusetts Democrats for the Civil Service Reform pretentions of the Administration The indorsement coming at the same time as that of Mr Fellows was naturally interpreted as a sign of willingness to surrender any principle if it would aid in Mr Cleveland's re-election

The Democratic candidate for Governor in Ohio made Mr Cleveland the issue there "A vote for the Democratic ticket, he said, 'is a vote for Grover Cleveland The answer given to this was a heavy Republican majority

There is nothing in all this to show that Mr Cleveland will not be renominated It will not be however as a reformer but as an old fashioned Jacksonian Democrat, who believes that a bad Democrat is to be preferred even to a Democrat who is good provided the former is the regular nominee

DEDHAM'S MYSTERY

Mr W. E Rice Has an Encounter with the Midnight Prowler.

BOSTON Nov 14 Another encounter has been had with the mysterious person who has been reported as prowling about Dedham late at night and causing alarm among many of the citizens by his strange actions Saturday night, near 12 o'clock, while Mr William E Rice, whose residence is on Willow street in the southern part of Dedham and who holds a position in the Boston & Providence freight house in Boston, was superintending the emptying of a cesspool at the rear of his house, he and the men employed by him heard the footsteps of a person passing between them and the house Mr Rice, knowing that no one had any business there at that hour, determined to investigate

There is a private way through the land of Mr Rice which leads from Willow street over the New York & New England Railroad to the land of Otis H Weed Mr Rice rapidly proceeded toward this private way, and, on covering half the distance, came upon the intruder, and demanded an explanation of why he was there, where he was going and what his name was, to all of which inquiries the man answered sullenly "It's none of your business" Mr Rice grappled with the stranger and called on Cahill, one of his men, to bring a lantern so that he might be identified Upon light being shed upon him, he was found to be about six feet tall, dressed in a long black coat, single breasted, which was cut very long; on his head was a black slouch hat, and around his neck a white cloth, he was square jawed, with prominent cheek bones, had black sunken eyes, and a sparse black mustache.

The stranger maintained a sullen demeanor while undergoing the scrutiny of Mr Rice When Mr. Rice released him, with an admonition to make himself scarce, he said: "I know you, Rice, and will even up this matter." Mr. Rice replied: "Well, I don't know you, but if you have got anything to settle, no is your opportunity, so sail in." At the same time Mr. Rice sprang for the stranger and proceeded to make it warm for him. This he evidently did from the fact that the man at the first chance wrenched himself loose from Mr. Rice's grasp and ran like a deer.

Mr. Rice was satisfied that he had caught one [illegible] who for a month has been tapping at the windows of different residences in Dedham at night and frightening women and children Citizens generally agree that steps should be taken to capture this person

Songs for Sad Ones

BY ANNIE E SPEARING

O sing your sweetest little bird!
Your songs are for the sad
Your trills exquisite are unheard,
Unheeded by the glad
Go gentle breezes lay a kiss
Upon the pain lined brow!
The hearts that throb with eager bliss
Need not your love I trow

Moisten soft rain the lids that burn
And ache with tears unshed
Shine tender stars on hearts that yearn
For vanished lights instead
Sail fleecy clouds before the sun
Lest its bright light should tire
The weary toilers who have done
Much they could not desire

O blossom for the lonely heart
Dear flower small and white
The merry know you not apart
From woe is that quickly blight
Yet you have fragrance rare and pure
For those who walk in shade
And beauty that will long endure
When roses droop and fade

The many scoff, not the few—
Sing sweet for sad ones bird
Joy would grow old if hearts but knew
Her smile and cheery word
Tis not the dazzled eyes who know
Where sweetest things are found
Then blow my wee white blossom blow
Though scarce above the ground

COUNTESS NARONA.

BY WILKIE COLLINS.

CHAPTER XIV.

As the summer months advanced, the tranformation of the Venetian palace into the modern hotel proceeded rapidly toward completion.

The outside of the building, with its fine Palladian front looking on the canal, was wisely left unaltered. Inside, as a matter of necessity, the rooms were almost rebuilt—so far at least as the size and the arrangement of them were concerned. The vast saloons were partitioned off into "apartments" containing three or four rooms each. The broad corridors in the upper regions afforded spare space enough for rows of little bed chambers, devoted to servants and to travelers of limited means. Nothing was spared but the solid floors and the finely carved ceilings. These last, in excellent preservation as to workmanship, merely required cleaning and regilding here and there to add greatly to the beauty and importance of the best rooms in the hotel. The only exception to the complete reorganization of the interior was at one extremity of the edifice on the first and second floors. Here there happened in each case to be rooms of such comparatively moderate size, and so attractively decorated, that the architect suggested leaving them as they were. It was afterward discovered that these were no other than the apartments respectively occupied by Lord Montbarry (on the first floor) and by Baron Rivar (on the second) The room in which Montbarry had died was still fitted up as a bed room, and was now distinguished as number fourteen. The room above it, in which the baron slept, took its place on the hotel register as number thirty eight. With the ornaments on the wall and ceilings cleaned and brightened up, and with the heavy old fashioned beds chairs, and tables replaced by bright, pretty and luxurious modern furniture, these two promised to be at once the most attractive and most comfortable bed chambers in the hotel. As for the once desolate and disused ground floor of the building, it was now transformed, by means of splendid dining rooms, reception rooms billiard rooms and smoking rooms, into a palace by itself. Even the dungeon like walls beneath, now lighted and ventilated on the most approved plan had been turned as if by magic into kitchens, servants' offices, ice rooms and wine cellars Passing from the lapse of the summer months at Venice to the lapse of the summer months in Ireland it is next to be recorded that Mrs. Roland obtained the situation of attendant on the invalid, Mrs. Carbury, and that the fair Miss Haldane, like a female Cæsar, came saw and conquered on her first day's visit to the new Lord Montbarry's house.

The ladies were as loud in her praises as Arthur Barville himself Lord Montbarry declared that she was the only perfectly pretty woman he had ever seen who was really unconscious of her own attractions. The old nurse said she looked as if she had just stepped out of a picture and wanted nothing but a gilt frame round her to make her complete Miss Haldane, on her side returned from her first visit to the Montbarrys, charmed with her new acquaintances. Later on the same day Arthur called with an offering of fruit and flowers for Mrs Carbury and with instructions to ask if she was well enough to receive Lord and Lady Montbarry and Miss Lockwood on the morrow In a week's time the two households were on the friendliest terms. Mrs. Carbury, confined to the sofa by a spinal malady had been hitherto dependent on her niece for one of the few pleasures she could enjoy—the pleasure of having the best new novels read to her as they came out. Discovering this, Arthur volunteered to relieve Miss Haldane at intervals in the office of reader He was clever at mechanical contrivance of all sorts and he introduced improvements in Mrs Carbury's couch and in the means of conveying her from the bed chamber to the drawing room which alleviated the poor lady's sufferings and brightened her gloomy life With these claims on the gratitude of the aunt aided by the personal advantages which he unquestionably possessed Arthur advanced rapidly in the favor of the charming niece She was, it is needless to say perfectly well aware that he was in love with her while he was himself modestly reticent on the subject—so far as words went. But she was not equally quick in penetrating the nature of her own feelings toward Arthur Watching the two young people with keen powers of observation, necessarily concentrated on them by the complete seclusion of her life the invalid lady discovered signs of roused sensibility in Miss Haldane when Arthur was present which had never yet shown themselves in her social relations with other admirers eager to pay their addresses to her Having drawn her own conclusions in private Mrs. Carbury took the first favorable opportunity (in Arthur's interests) of putting them to the test.

'I don't know what I shall do,' she said one day, "when Arthur goes away '

Miss Haldane looked up quickly from her work. Surely he is not going to leave us! she exclaimed

My dear! he has already stayed at his uncle's house a month longer than he intended. His father and mother naturally expect to see him at home again.

Miss Haldane met this difficulty with a suggestion, which could only have proceeded from a judgment already disturbed by the ravages of the tender passion 'Why can't his father and mother go and see him at Lord Montbarry's?' she asked. Sir Theodore's place is only thirty miles away and Lady Barville is Lord Montbarry's sister They needn't stand on ceremony

'They may have other engagements, Mrs Carbury remarked.

My dear aunt, we don't know that! Suppose you ask Arthur?

"Suppose you ask him."

Miss Haldane bent her head again over her work. Suddenly as it was done her aunt had seen her face—and her face betrayed her

When Arthur came the next day Mrs. Carbury said a word to him in private, while her niece was in the garden. The last new novel lay neglected on the table Arthur followed Miss Haldane into the garden. The next day he wrote home inclosing in his letter a photograph of Miss Haldane. Before the end of the week Sir Theodore and Lady Barville arrived at Lord Montbarry's, and formed their own judgment of the fidelity of the portrait. They had themselves married early in life, and, strange to say, they did not object on principle to the early marriages of other people The question of age being thus disposed of the course of true love had no other obstacles to encounter Miss Haldane was an only child and was possessed of an ample fortune. Arthur's career at the university had been creditable, but certainly not brilliant enough to present his withdrawal in the light of a disaster As Sir Theodore's eldest son his position was already made for him. He was 23 years of age and the young lady was 18 There was really no producible reason for keeping the lovers waiting, and no excuse for deferring the wedding day beyond the first week in September In the interval, while the bride and bridegroom would be necessarily absent on the inevitable tour abroad a sister of Mrs. Carbury volunteered to stay with her during the temporary separation from her niece On the conclusion of the honeymoon the young couple were to return to Ireland, and were to establish themselves in Mrs. Carbury's spacious and comfortable house.

These arrangements were decided upon early in the month of August. About the same date the last alterations in the old palace at Venice were completed. The rooms were dried by steam, the cellars were stocked, the manager collected around him his army of skilled servants, and the new hotel was advertised all over Europe to open in October

CHAPTER XV

MISS AGNES LOCKWOOD TO MRS. FERRARI.

"I promised to give you some account, dear Emily, of the marriage of Mr Arthur Barville and Miss Haldane It took place ten days since. But I have had so many things to look after in the absence of the master and the mistress of this house that I am only able to write to you today

"The invitations to the wedding were limited to members of the families on either side, in consideration of the ill health of Miss Haldane's aunt. On the side of the Montbarry family there were present, besides Lord and Lady Montbarry, Sir Theodore and Lady Barville, Mrs. Norbury (whom you may remember as his lordship's second sister), and Mr Francis Westwick and Mr. Henry Westwick The three children and I attended the ceremony as bridesmaids. We were joined by two young ladies, cousins of the bride and very agreeable girls. Our dresses were white, trimmed with green in honor of Ireland, and we each had a handsome gold bracelet given to us as a present from the bridegroom. If you add to the persons whom I have already mentioned, the older members of Mrs. Carbury's family, and the old servants in both houses—privileged to drink the health of the married pair at the lower end of the room—you will have [illegible]

"The weather was perfect, and the ceremony (with music) was beautifully performed. As for the bride, no words can describe how lovely she looked, or how well she went through it all. We were very merry at the breakfast, and the speeches went off, on the whole, quite well enough. The last speech before the party broke up was made by Mr Henry Westwick, and was the best of all. He made a happy suggestion at the end, which has produced a very unexpected change in my life here.

"As well as I remember, he concluded in these words "'On one point we are all agreed—we are sorry that the parting hour is near, and we should be glad to meet again. Why should we not meet again? This is the autumn time of the year we are most of us leaving home for the holidays What do you say (if you have no engagements that will prevent it) to joining our young married friends before the close of their tour, and renewing the social success of this delightful breakfast by another festival in honor of the honeymoon? The bride and bridegroom are going to Germany and the Tyrol, on their way to Italy I propose that we allow them a month to themselves, and that we arrange to meet them afterward in the north of Italy—say at Venice.'

"This proposal was received with great applause, which was changed into shouts of laughter by no less a person than my dear old nurse The moment Mr Westwick pronounced the word 'Venice' she started up among the servants at the lower end of the room, and called out at the top of her voice 'Go to our hotel, ladies and gentlemen! We get 6 per cent. on our money already, and if you will only crowd the place and call for the best of everything it will be 10 per cent. in our pockets in no time. Ask Master Henry'

"Appealed to in this irresistible manner Mr Westwick had no choice but to explain that he was concerned as a shareholder in a new hotel company at Venice, and that he had invested a small sum of money for the nurse—not very considerately, as I think—in the speculation Hearing this the company, by way of humoring the joke drank a new toast Success to the Nurse's Hotel and a Speedy Rise in the Dividend'

'When the conversation returned in due time to the more serious question of the proposed meeting at Venice difficulties began to present themselves, caused, of course by invitations for the autumn which many of the guests had already accepted. Only two members of Mrs. Carbury's family were at liberty to keep the proposed appointment. On our side we were more at leisure to do as we pleased. Mr Henry Westwick decided to go to Venice in advance of the rest, to test the accommodation of the new hotel on the opening day Mrs. Norbury and Mr Francis Westwick volunteered to follow him, and after some persuasion Lord and Lady Montbarry consented to a species of compromise. His lordship could not conveniently spare time enough for the journey to Venice, but he and Lady Montbarry arranged to accompany Mrs. Norbury and Mr Francis Westwick as far on their way to Italy as Paris. Five days since they took their departure to meet their traveling companions in London, leaving me here in charge of the three dear children They begged hard, of course to be taken with papa and mamma. But it was thought better not to interrupt the progress of their education, and not to expose them—especially the two younger girls—to the fatigues of traveling

"I have had a charming letter from the bride this morning dated Cologne You cannot think how artlessly and prettily she assures me of her happiness. Some people as they say in Ireland are born to good luck—and I think Arthur Barville is one of them.

"When you next write I hope to hear that you are in better health and spirits and that you continue to like your employment. Believe me, sincerely your friend, A L'

Agnes had just closed and directed her letter when the eldest of her three pupils entered the room with the startling announcement that Lord Montbarry's traveling servant had arrived from Paris! Alarmed by the idea that some misfortune had happened, she ran out to meet the man in the hall Her face told him how seriously he had frightened her before she could speak There's nothing wrong miss" he hastened to say 'My lord and my lady are enjoying themselves at Paris They only want you and the young ladies to be with them." Saying these amazing words he handed to Agnes a letter from Lady Montbarry

Dearest Agnes —she read— I am so charmed with the delightful change in my life—it is six years remember since I last traveled on the continent—that I have exerted all my fascinations to persuade Lord Montbarry to go on to Venice. And what is more to the purpose, I have actually succeeded! He has just gone to his room to write the necessary letters of excuse in time for the post to England. May you have as good a husband my dear, when your time comes! In the meanwhile, the one thing wanting now to make my happiness complete is to have you and the darling children with us. Montbarry is just as miserable without them as I am—though he doesn't confess it so freely You will have no difficulties to trouble you. Louis will deliver these hurried lines, and will take care of you on the journey to Paris. Kiss the children for me a thousand times—and never mind their education for the present! Pack up instantly, my dear, and I will be fonder of you than ever Your affectionate friend, ADELA MONTBARRY"

Agnes folded up the letter, and, feeling the need of composing herself took refuge for a few minutes in her own room.

Her first natural sensations of surprise and excitement at the prospect of going to Venice were succeeded by impressions of a less agreeable kind With the recovery of her customary composure came the unwelcome remembrance of the parting words spoken to her by Montbarry's widow 'We shall meet again—here in England, or there in Venice, where my husband died—and meet for the last time

It was an odd coincidence to say the least of it that the march of events should be unexpectedly taking Agnes to Venice after those words had been spoken! Was the woman of the mysterious warnings and the wild, black eyes still thousands of miles away in America? Or was the march of events taking her unexpectedly too, on the journey to Venice? Agnes started out of her chair, ashamed of even the momentary concession to superstition which was implied by the mere presence of such questions as these in her mind

She rang the bell and sent for her little pupils, and announced their approaching departure to the household. The noisy delight of the children, the inspiriting effort of packing up in a hurry, roused all her energies. She dismissed her own absurd misgivings from consideration, with the contempt that they deserved. She worked as only women can work when their hearts are in what they do. The travelers reached Dublin that day, in time for the boat to England Two days later they were with Lord and Lady Montbarry at Paris.
